Thanks, Con

Ms. Wang, if it's easy to send along some practice sheets or other things, I can support Con. And apologies if these are shared somewhere else that I should know about (which would NOT surprise me in the least).

Hi David,

Thank you very much for your support.

I wanted to share a little more detail about Connor's preparation plan for the upcoming ILS (Interpersonal Listening and Speaking) assessment.

The questions students will receive on the ILS will be selected from the 10 questions that were provided in advance. We have already worked through all 10 questions in class, one by one, and I have provided students with suggestions and feedback on how to strengthen their responses. Students can also refer to the sample audio files, which demonstrate the expected quality and level of responses needed to meet the standard. I have attached the relevant materials below, and they are also available on Toddle.

Today, I had individual check-ins with several students, including Connor. He showed me the script he has prepared so far, and his current work is approaching the expected standard. After our conversation today, Connor now has a clear plan for how to revise and strengthen his responses so that he can meet the expectations and, hopefully, progress beyond them.

We still have class time next Monday for additional practice, and Connor is scheduled to take the speaking assessment next Wednesday. I will continue checking in with him and supporting him as he prepares.

Thank you again for your support and partnership. I am hopeful that with his continued preparation and practice, Connor will be well positioned to demonstrate his progress on the assessment.

Best,
